Areas of Greatest Need:

There were 581 foreclosures within the City of Grand Prairie for 2008. The city has identified all active foreclosures within the city limits totaling 103 at this time. The city will consider high abandonment risk scoring census tracts ζ scores between 4-10 as areas of priority initially for purchases and assistance grants. However, the geographical distribution of active foreclosures is widely dispersed throughout the city, and will change continuously. Keeping this in mind, the city will regularly obtain active foreclosure data from the Multiple Listing Service to attempt to service these areas primarily. The majority of low/mod income tracts lie in the areas scoring 4-10. At this time 103 out of 103 active foreclosures are in tracts scoring between 4-10. The city identifies these areas as having the greatest need. Risk scores are based on the (3) HUD identified criteria: 1) Greatest % of foreclosed homes; 2) Highest % of homes financed by sub-prime loans; 3) Areas likely to experience rise in foreclosures. Risk scores are derived from data provided by HUD on these (3) criteria ζ not solely on foreclosure totals. The higher the score, the higher the overall risk of foreclosure considering the 3 criteria. (see attached supporting HUD foreclosure risk and MLS foreclosure data table, map, and list of census tracts submitted with substantial amendment)
